INTRODUCTION

- 1. This submission to the Human Rights Council for the 2025 Universal Periodic Review (UPR) of the United States (U.S.) is a joint report from a coalition of 23 U.S.-based, non-profit organizations that defend the human rights of non-citizens. The information presented shows that the U.S. has failed to meaningfully address Member States' 2020 UPR recommendations to the U.S. to remedy human rights violations of non-citizens.¹ Instead, the U.S. continues to violate the human rights of non-citizens through mass detention, denial of due process, abusive and discriminatory policing, labor exploitation, and suppression of civic space.
- 2. We respectfully urge the Human Rights Council to direct international attention to the rapidly deteriorating human rights situation of non-citizens in the U.S. and to call for solidarity with immigrants enduring ongoing abuses at the hands of U.S. officials.

I. MASS DETENTION

3. The U.S. wields the world's largest immigrant incarceration system to punish people for migrating and to deter future immigration.² Non-citizens in detention, including children and families, endure abusive conditions of confinement at both border and interior detention sites.

Open Air Border Detention Sites

4. The U.S. federal agency, Customs and Border Protection (CBP), operates makeshift Open Air Detention Sites (OADS) along the U.S.-Mexico border to indefinitely detain non-citizens, including pregnant women and children.³ Mostly Latin American, Asian, African, and Indigenous people endure deplorable conditions in OADS, with no shelter or protection from the elements.⁴ OADS conditions are unsanitary, with no permanent toilets or showers.⁵ People are forced to shelter in portable toilets and dumpsters.⁶ Volunteers provide basic supplies, as CBP offers little food or water.⁷ In February 2024, lawyers in a U.S. federal court lawsuit filed a motion to enforce legal protections for children in immigration detention, leading to a decrease in OADS detentions.⁸ However, CBP has taken no action to permanently end OADS.⁹

Deadly and Abusive Interior Immigration Detention

- 5. The U.S. federal agency Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) uses local and state jails, privately operated detention centers, open-air tent facilities, and military bases to detain non-citizens in punishing conditions designed to coerce them into accepting deportation. Over 90% of U.S. immigration detention is run by private prison companies, incentivized to maximize profits from public funds by understaffing facilities, denying minimally nutritious food and sanitation, and coercing manual labor from detained people.¹⁰
- 6. People detained experience torture and fatal medical neglect.¹¹ Between 2018 and 2023, ICE oversaw more than 14,000 placements in solitary confinement, used disproportionately against people in mental health distress.¹² At least 51 people in ICE detention facilities have died since FY 2020,¹³ with deaths by alleged suicide increasing 11-fold in 2020 compared to the prior 10-year average.¹⁴ Independent medical experts found that 95% of all 52 reported deaths in immigration detention between 2017 and 2021 were preventable or possibly preventable if ICE had provided clinically appropriate medical care.¹⁵
- 7. The U.S. denies due process to people in immigration detention. It limits access to legal counsel though excessive limits on visiting hours and telephone use.¹⁶ As a result, only 13% of people in detention are granted relief in their deportation proceedings, versus 69% of individuals outside of detention.¹⁷ It incarcerates over half of the detained population in indefinite, mandatory immigration detention pending a final decision in deportation proceedings, with no opportunity for individualized review of the need for detention.¹⁸ In January 2025, the U.S. dramatically expanded mandatory immigration detention with federal legislation that subjects people merely accused of crimes like shoplifting to mandatory immigration detention,¹⁹ relying on racially discriminatory policing.²⁰

- 8. The rapid expansion of the detained population has led to overcrowding in packed cells, forcing detained people to sleep on floors.²¹ The current U.S. government's goal of "deporting millions of people"²² has led to the detention of over 47,000 people in a detention infrastructure with a maximum capacity of 41,500.²³ To expand detention capacity, the U.S. now incarcerates immigrants facing deportation in federal prisons designed for punitive purposes, temporary processing sites unequipped for long-term detention, and detention centers previously shuttered due to documented human rights abuses.²⁴
- 9. The U.S. also uses geographically isolated detention facilities to disappear politically disfavored non-citizens, including in retaliation for political speech.²⁵ In 2025, the U.S. transferred detained Venezuelans to Guantanamo Bay, a notorious black-hole prison site where people are hidden from public view and denied access to legal counsel.²⁶ The U.S. also utilizes remote facilities in Louisiana and Texas to disappear political protestors, including university students who peacefully protested the genocide of Palestinians.²⁷

Detention of Children

- 10. The U.S. detains non-citizen children in abusive conditions of confinement in both border and interior detention centers. In the interior, the U.S. operates the Karnes and Dilley family detention centers, prior sites of death, abuse, and psychological harm of children.²⁸
- 11. At border detention facilities, the U.S. punishes children for migrating with abusive conditions of confinement. Under a 1997 U.S. federal court settlement of a lawsuit challenging detention of children called the Flores Settlement Agreement, the U.S. is bound to protect children held in federal immigration custody.²⁹ In 2022, the U.S.' persistent failure to improve treatment of children in border detention resulted in a new settlement mandating improvements in housing, medical care, and family unification.³⁰ Subsequent monitoring documented routine separation of children from parents and trusted family members, medical failures, lack of access to legal counsel and clean and warm clothing, and limited or no child-friendly activities, recreation, or trauma-informed care for prolonged periods of detention.³¹ In January 2024, a U.S. federal court extended the settlement after the death of a child in CBP custody.³²

12. Recommendations:

- Eliminate Open Air Detention Sites.
- Investigate and prevent systemic abuse of people in immigration detention and unaccompanied children in federal custody.
- End government contracts with private prison companies to operate for-profit immigration detention facilities in the U.S. and ban new contracts.
- End immigration detention and implement community-based alternatives.
- End detention of immigrant families and children. Ban transfer to adult detention of unaccompanied children who turn 18 in government custody.

- Safely reunify unaccompanied children in government custody with family and end surveillance of those families.
- Ratify the Convention on the Rights of the Child and implement due protections from detention for immigrant children.
- Abolish solitary confinement in immigration detention.
- Ensure medical care for detained people, particularly for people with disabilities and mental health conditions and people who are pregnant, postpartum, and LGBTQ+.
- Ensure access to counsel, communication with family, and transparency as to detained people's whereabouts in all confinement settings in the prevention of enforced disappearances.
- End use of the military and its bases, personnel, and equipment to process deportations and/or transfers to third countries.
- End the arbitrary detention of stateless persons who cannot be deported.
- Repeal mandatory detention laws that rely on racially discriminatory policing to subject people to mandatory immigration detention.

II. DENIAL OF DUE PROCESS

13. The U.S. denies non-citizens due process in immigration decisions concerning nonrefoulement, deportation, entry, and residence. Denials of due process occur through bans on asylum and refugee status, summary deportations, and denials of entry and residence due to racial and national origin discrimination.

• ASYLUM AND REFUGEE BANS

14. The U.S. uses physical pushbacks across the U.S.-Mexico border, regulatory and executive bans on asylum, and chain refoulement via transfers to third countries constituting enforced disappearances to deny humanitarian protection due under international human rights law.³³

Pushbacks

15. The U.S. has systematically pushed people back across the U.S.-Mexico border without first screening for non-refoulement protection, including under the Migrant Protection Protocols (MPP) and Title 42. Reinstated in January 2025, MPP forces asylum seekers to await U.S. immigration proceedings in precarious conditions in Mexico.³⁴ Over 2,500 attacks on people enrolled in MPP during its first iteration and over 13,000 attacks on migrants stranded in or expelled to Mexico under Title 42 have been documented, including kidnappings, rapes, and assaults by Mexican officials, often in collusion with cartels.³⁵

Regulatory and executive bans on asylum

- 16. In a series of regulations and executive proclamations, the U.S. systematically denies non-refoulement protection to non-citizens.³⁶ Examples include:
 - A May 2023 regulation that bans asylum for those who did not apply for asylum in a third country through which they transited and entered the United States without first obtaining an appointment with border officials through CBP One, a government mobile phone application available in limited languages.³⁷

- A June 2024 regulation (finalized in October 2024) that suspends entry and bans asylum for those who did not first obtain an appointment with border officials through CBP One, a government mobile phone application.³⁸
- The June 2024 regulation finalized in October also authorizes summary deportation without affirmatively asking a person if they fear return to determine if they must be screened for protection.³⁹
- A January 2025 presidential proclamation that declares a "migrant invasion" and suspends entry at the U.S.-Mexico border for those without a valid visa and bans asylum and other humanitarian protections.⁴⁰
- A February 2025 report that the U.S. plans to revive summary expulsion of noncitizens under the public health law Title 42, declaring unauthorized immigration a public health risk that spreads diseases like tuberculosis.⁴¹
- 17. Over 18,000 instances of kidnapping, murder, torture, rape, and other serious harms against asylum seekers and migrants turned away at the U.S. border or stranded in Mexico have been documented under MPP, Title 42, and asylum bans.⁴²

Third-country expulsions

18. The U.S. uses third-country expulsions to effect chain refoulement of non-citizens and to affirmatively place them in danger of kidnapping, violence, and enforced disappearances. Through negotiated agreements with Mexico, Costa Rica, Panama, and El Salvador, the U.S. has transferred hundreds of asylum seekers and other immigrants to third countries, where they face imprisonment, torture, enforced disappearances, onward refoulment, denial of due process, and other human rights abuses.⁴³ Under U.S. influence, third countries have subjected deported asylum seekers to cruel and degrading conditions of confinement, lack of medical care, and isolation from legal assistance.⁴⁴ The U.S. recently began disappearing Venezuelan migrants to a prison in El Salvador, including under the Alien Enemies Act, where people are routinely tortured and abused, as discussed further below.

Bans on refugee processing and admissions

19. In January 2025, the U.S. suspended the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program by executive order and subsequent administrative agency actions, indefinitely halting the processing of refugee applications and entry of all refugees.⁴⁵ Forthcoming increased vetting measures announced by executive order single out refugees and stateless people—who are already heavily vetted—for heightened scrutiny.⁴⁶ Despite a federal court ruling enjoining implementation of the ban, the administration has made no meaningful efforts to resume refugee processing or restore necessary funding.⁴⁷

The Alien Enemies Act

20. Under the Alien Enemies Act, originally passed in 1798, the U.S. president is claiming authority to summarily deport non-citizens. The U.S. Congress granted this constitutionally dubious authority for use only in times of "declared war" or when a foreign government threatens or undertakes an "invasion" or "predatory incursion" against U.S. territory.⁴⁸ In March 2025, the U.S. invoked the Alien Enemies Act to abduct Venezuelans, many with pending asylum applications, and send them to El Salvador upon mere accusations of gang membership,⁴⁹ in violation of a federal court order enjoining their deportation.⁵⁰ In El Salvador, the deported Venezuelans were tortured and held in indefinite detention in a prison that a former member of the U.N. Subcommittee on the Prevention of Torture described as a "concrete and steel pit" used "to dispose of people without formally applying the death penalty."⁵¹

Summary deportations under expedited removal

21. Under expedited removal, Congress authorized the executive to summarily deport people arriving at ports of entry and those in the U.S. who entered within the previous two years.⁵² Since the statute's enactment in 1996, the U.S. had voluntarily limited enforcement due to concerns that expedited removal deprives non-citizens of due process. Those voluntary limits have now been revoked. In 2024, the U.S. eliminated a longstanding requirement that officials affirmatively ask people in expedited removal if they fear return before summarily deporting them.⁵³ Now, the U.S. summarily removes an asylum seeker unless he or she affirmatively declares a fear of removal, also known as the "shout test."⁵⁴ In January 2025, the U.S. rescinded geographic and time limits to the enforcement of expedited removal.⁵⁵ Expedited removal typically occurs in immigration detention, where non-citizens are denied access to counsel, translation and interpretation, and meaningful judicial review.⁵⁶

• DISCRIMINATORY BANS ON ENTRY AND RESIDENCE

22. The U.S. discriminates on the basis of race, religion, and national origin in provision of immigration benefits, denying politically disfavored groups entry and continued residence.

Discriminatory entry bans

23. The U.S. discriminates against Muslim and African peoples through bans on entry that target and discriminate on the basis of national origin under the pretext of unfounded national security grounds.⁵⁷ The January 2025 executive order Protecting the U.S. from Foreign Terrorists and Other National Security and Public Safety Threats resurrects the specter of previous Muslim and African bans and seemingly expands their scope,⁵⁸ in violation of international non-discrimination laws.⁵⁹ Under these bans, the U.S. has already retroactively revoked U.S. student visas for Libyans and previously admitted visa holders are now at risk of deportation.⁶⁰ The harms of bans are concrete and considerable. Previous bans resulted in the denial of over 40,000 visas and caused a 94% drop in Muslim refugee admissions between January and November 2017 alone.⁶¹ New restrictions will inflict family separation based on national origin⁶² and harm tens of thousands of people, including previously vetted Afghan refugees and Special Immigrant Visa holders, leaving them vulnerable to retaliation by the Taliban.⁶³

Discriminatory denial of citizenship

24. The U.S. has proposed to end jus solis citizenship through executive action, even though U.S. federal courts have held it to be enshrined in the U.S. Constitution's Fourteenth Amendment.⁶⁴ A January 2025 executive order directs the federal government not to issue U.S. passports or to accept as proof of citizenship U.S. birth certificates of children born to a mother with temporary or no immigration status and a father who is not a U.S. citizen or lawful permanent resident. The policy discriminates against U.S.-born children of many asylum seekers, asylees, and other immigrants present on long-term visas based on their parents' national origin. It will inevitably lead to statelessness for children born to parents with temporary or undocumented status. Litigation has suspended enforcement of the executive order, but a final decision on its legality is pending before U.S. courts.⁶⁵

Discriminatory refusal to protect stateless people

25. The U.S. refuses to ratify the statelessness conventions, has no unified domestic definition of statelessness, and lacks reliable procedures for identifying or protecting stateless persons. An estimated 200,000 stateless people reside in the U.S., including Palestinians, Rohingya from Myanmar, Haitians from the Dominican Republic, Black Mauritanians, and Bedoons from Kuwait. Many are undocumented, unable to obtain lawful status or depart from the U.S. without risking permanent banishment.⁶⁶ Those ordered deported are vulnerable to prolonged immigration detention, denial of work authorization or ability to travel internationally, and family separation.⁶⁷ The U.S. has adopted a policy to consider the discretionary relevance of statelessness for purposes of immigration benefits, but lacks specific, mandatory protections for stateless people.⁶⁸

Discriminatory revocation of permissions to legally reside in the U.S.

26. The U.S. has terminated humanitarian protection for over half a million immigrants from Cuba, Haiti, Nicaragua, and Venezuela (the CHNV humanitarian parole program), people largely of African, Indigenous, and Mestizo descent. It has also ended temporary protected status for certain Venezuelans and Haitians.⁶⁹ At the time of this writing, the termination of the CHNV program and TPS programs are being challenged in U.S. federal courts as arbitrary and racially discriminatory actions in violation of due process provisions of the U.S. Constitution.⁷⁰

27. Recommendations:

- Rescind the bans suspending asylum and refugee admissions and processing.
- Terminate the Migrant Protection Protocols program.
- Restore access and funding to the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program.
- Immediately halt transfers and removals of non-citizens to third countries.
- End unlawful use of the Alien Enemies Act to subvert domestic and international human rights obligations.
- Remedy the chronic under-staffing of asylum officers and immigration court staff.
- End expedited removal.
- Ensure due process in immigration adjudications, including a hearing, counsel, interpretation, disability accommodations, and consideration of trauma history.
- Ensure ongoing recognition of jus solis citizenship as mandated by the U.S. Constitution.
- Ratify and fully implement the 1954 Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, the 1961 Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, and core human rights treaties.
- Adopt a domestic definition of statelessness in line with Article 1 of the 1954 Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons.
- Implement the Stateless Protection Act of 2024.
- Cease arbitrary, discriminatory denaturalization processes and ensure procedural safeguards for equal citizenship rights of all naturalized U.S. citizens.
- Establish a fair, effective, and accessible statelessness determination procedure. While status is pending, provide stateless persons with an identity, work authorization, access to an international travel document, and pathways to facilitated naturalization.
- Remediate bias motivated by race, sexuality, or gender in decisions to revoke or grant humanitarian immigration benefits.

• End discriminatory enhanced vetting of non-citizens based on religion, race, national origin, or political ideology as a basis for denying entry or for revoking visas.

III. ABUSIVE IMMIGRATION ENFORCEMENT

28. The U.S. uses deception, unwarranted intrusions on privacy, and excessive force to police noncitizens, both in the interior of the country and at the U.S.-Mexico border. It also encourages impunity by refusing to hold immigration officials accountable for human rights violations.

Deception and invasions of privacy in interior enforcement

- 29. The U.S. uses deception to avoid search warrant requirements when making immigration arrests. Immigration and Customs (ICE) officials pose as occupational safety inspectors, family members, and local police requesting assistance with a criminal investigation to gain entry into homes without a warrant or to lure people into public spaces for arrest.⁷¹
- 30. The U.S. also employs unwarranted invasions of privacy to conduct immigration enforcement. In 2025, the U.S. rescinded a longstanding policy against immigration enforcement in hospitals, schools, and houses of worship.⁷² The U.S. has also published a regulation to create a national registry of non-citizens. Registration would require providing the government sensitive and personally identifiable information concerning non-citizens and their family members. Failure to register and carry proof of registration at all times would be a crime punishable by fines and jail.⁷³ The U.S. previously used non-citizen registration during World War II to facilitate the detention of Japanese-Americans in internment camps.⁷⁴

Abuse and Killings by Border Agents and Border Militarization

- 31. Since 2020, abuse and killings by U.S. border agents have surged. Customs and Border Protection (CBP), the largest U.S. law enforcement agency, uses racial profiling, illegal stops and searches, mistreatment, and excessive force to police non-citizens.⁷⁵ The U.S. lacks reliable data on law enforcement fatalities and fails to report death-related incidents, but since January 2010, there have been at least 334 fatal encounters with CBP.⁷⁶ In Border Patrol's El Paso Sector, a recent report found "CBP is undercounting migrant deaths," with advocates counting "as much as [...] four times as many deaths" than those reflected in CBP sources.⁷⁷ Over the past three years, border agents have used force against people over an average of 1,000 times per year.⁷⁸ Adults, families, and unaccompanied children in CBP custody report verbal and physical abuse, medical neglect, and lack of access to hygiene products.⁷⁹
- 32. U.S. state governments also engage in violent border policing. The state of Texas leads an independent state-led border enforcement effort called Operation Lone Star (OLS), staffed by 10,000 agents of the National Guard (a state-based military force) and an undetermined number of Texas Department of Public Safety units.⁸⁰ OLS agents push back asylum seekers at the U.S.-Mexico border with excessive force, shooting pepper spray and rubber balls at children and families and separating families.⁸¹ OLS agents have also installed concertina wire along 100 miles of the Texas-Mexico border and floating buoys with razor write in the Rio Grande, the river separating Texas from Mexico, causing lacerations and wounds, including in children.⁸² OLS agents have killed 106 people and injured at least 301 in high-speed police pursuits between 2021 and February 2025.⁸³
- 33. Militarization of the border has also contributed to increased fatalities. Since 2020, the U.S. has expanded border wall construction at the U.S. southwestern border to over 740 miles, appropriating much of the land used to construct it from nearly 400 private Texas landowners.⁸⁴ Because many sections of the wall have been raised from 10 to 30 feet, medical experts have observed an increase in severe spinal and brain injuries from border wall falls.⁸⁵ U.S. Congress members are advocating for $35.8 billion more in funding for additional construction.⁸⁶

Lack of Accountability for Human Rights Violations

- 34. Victims of killings by border agents and their families struggle to access justice in the U.S. due to legal standards at odds with international human rights law. Rather than observing international use of force standards of "necessity and proportionality," the U.S. employs the deficient "objectively reasonable" standard.⁸⁷
- 35. The U.S. also lacks sufficient accountability mechanisms to address police violence. In March 2025, the U.S. government fired the majority of staff in federal oversight bodies.⁸⁸ A U.S. Government Accountability Office report found that CBP insulates agents from accountability with toothless internal investigations.⁸⁹ The U.S. also shuttered the National Law Enforcement Accountability Database, deleting critical data tracking law enforcement misconduct, of which CBP was the second-largest contributor.⁹⁰ To this date, Texas has not provided any accountability nor reparation mechanisms for the abuses against people on the move and border residents under Operation Lone Star.

36. Recommendations:

- Ensure impartial investigations of use of force by Customs and Border Protection.
- Adopt the "necessary and proportional" standard for use of force and amend state and federal use of force policies to match international human rights standards.
- Decommission the wall at the U.S.-Mexico border and address previous destruction of Indigenous sites, environmental degradation, and wall-related deaths.
- Restore and ensure independent oversight by the Office for Civil Rights and Civil Liberties, Office of the Inspector General, and the Immigration Detention Ombudsman.
- End collaboration between local and state police and Immigration and Customs Enforcement under 287(g) agreements.
- Collect and assess disaggregated statistical data on race, ethnicity, and statelessness by federal immigration agencies.

IV. LABOR EXPLOITATION

37. The U.S. subjects non-citizen workers to wage theft, discrimination, unsafe working conditions, labor-based exploitation, and violence and fails to uphold the International Labour Organization's fundamental principles and rights at work.⁹¹

Wage Theft and Discrimination

38. The U.S. denies comprehensive legal protections to migrant workers and fails to enforce domestic nondiscrimination laws.⁹² Temporary labor migration programs (TLMPs) and U.S. temporary work visa programs often lead to discriminatory wages and rights abuses.⁹³ Twenty percent of California farm workers report wage theft.⁹⁴ Fully 26% of TLMPs trap migrant workers in cycles of abuse and hinder access to remedies by tying immigration status to continued work in a practice dubbed by some as "close to slavery."⁹⁵ Employers found to violate the law, whether relating to wage and hour, labor, health and safety, discrimination, or civil rights laws, have still been allowed still to continue hiring workers under these programs.

The Inter-American Commission on Human Rights recently found that the U.S.' actions and exploitation of undocumented workers violated the rights of non-citizen workers.⁹⁶

Unsafe Working Conditions

39. The U.S. fails to protect non-citizen workers from unsafe workplace conditions. Latino and Hispanic workers are disproportionately injured in the workplace⁹⁷ and 15% more likely to suffer fatal injuries than nationals.⁹⁸ Central Americans face an even higher risk, as they are 45% more likely to experience fatal accidents.⁹⁹ Non-citizen workers are also vulnerable to unsafe working conditions caused by climate change, such as extreme heat, floods, and wildfires. In California, 90% of farmworkers are Latino, and many work in extreme conditions without proper rest breaks, water, sanitation, or protection like masks. Over 10% lack clean drinking water, 25% lack access to clean toilets and sanitation, 17% struggle to breathe due to smoke, and over 32% report not being given adequate protection such as masks or respirators.¹⁰⁰ Fear of retaliation prevents many non-citizens from reporting unsafe conditions, with two-thirds fearing job loss or deportation. Private U.S. employers use threats of deportation to intimidate workers and prevent them from reporting labor violations.^{78%} of migrants reported that employers threaten to report them for deportation if they complain.¹⁰¹

Exploitation and Risks of Human Trafficking

40. Migrant domestic workers in the U.S. are not protected by labor laws and face high rates of abuse, exploitation, and violence.¹⁰² A study found that 67% of surveyed workers were paid below the state minimum wage, 65% lacked health insurance, and 25% averaged only 5 hours of sleep per night.¹⁰³ They also face some of the highest rates of human trafficking in the U.S., with 85% of trafficking survivors reporting having wages withheld, 81% having lived in abusive living conditions, 78% facing threats of deportation from their employers, 77% having their movements restricted by employers, and 66% experiencing physical or sexual abuse.¹⁰⁴ Despite knowing that visa programs contribute to increasing levels of human trafficking of mostly women and ethnic minority domestic workers, U.S. officials have failed to take appropriate steps to prevent or protect them from exploitation and injury.¹⁰⁵

41. Recommendations:

- Ratify and implement key international labor conventions on migrant workers, including Conventions No. 97, No. 143, No. 189 and their Recommendations, and the UN Convention on Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and their Families.
- Eliminate workplace discrimination against non-citizens, regardless of status, ensuring equal treatment in wages and working conditions, including prohibition of recruitment fees and costs, regardless of status.
- Ensure federal laws and regulations permit migrant workers in visa programs to change employers, and to leave lawbreaking employers without penalty, and to have immediate access to work authorization to ensure they can provide for themselves.
- Ensure federal and state labor laws align with international standards, protecting all noncitizen workers, including temporary ones, with fair wages, safe conditions, and pathways to permanent residence or citizenship.
- Protect the right to freedom of association and collective bargaining for all non-citizen workers, regardless of occupation or status.
- Improve labor inspections and increase inspectors, especially in occupations with high levels of migrant workers and in high-risk jobs like agriculture, construction, manufacturing, and domestic work, with a firewall between immigration enforcement and labor inspection.

• Ensure non-citizen workers have access to healthcare, social protection benefits, and portability of benefits, in line with international labor standards.

V. SUPPRESSION OF CIVIC SPACE

42. The U.S. suppresses civil society actors engaged in defense of immigrant and human rights, including both non-citizens and those working in support of non-citizens.

Retaliation for political speech

43. The U.S retaliates against non-citizens engaged in political speech with detention and deportation. In March 2025, the U.S. detained and initiated deportation proceedings against Mahmoud Khalil, a lawful permanent resident student activist who had organized protests against Israel's military campaign in Gaza.¹⁰⁶ U.S. officials claimed that Khalil's political speech and previous work with the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) were a form of anti-Semitism that warranted his expulsion.¹⁰⁷ The U.S. has since undertaken enforcement actions against at least seven other people because of their political speech.¹⁰⁸ U.S. officials have publicly threatened continued retaliation of non-citizens for expressing political opinions.¹⁰⁹

Attacks on civil society

- 44. U.S. federal and state governments criminalize and suppress efforts to defend the human rights of non-citizens. The federal government is suing immigrant-protective states and localities to abolish sanctuary policies, which limit the cooperation of local law enforcement with federal immigration agencies and are a critical tool to protect immigrant communities from abusive federal policies.¹¹⁰ In March 2025, the federal government published a notice issuing its intent to criminally investigate civil society organizations that provide legal services to immigrants.¹¹¹
- 45. State governments suppress non-profit assistance to immigrant communities. In 2024, Texas opened criminal investigations into immigrant-serving non-profits on spurious charges of human trafficking and harboring undocumented immigrants.¹¹² In June 2022, the Florida governor petitioned the state supreme court to empanel a statewide grand jury to investigate support for immigrants in Florida, creating fear among advocates, municipal employees, and immigrant rights attorneys.¹¹³ As of 2025, Florida's governor has dramatically escalated threats of removal to local elected officials who represent immigrant communities and take positions aligned with them.¹¹⁴ These efforts to push human rights defenders into the shadows are concerning, particularly as efforts to support immigrant communities face growing criminalization.¹¹⁵

46. Recommendations:

- Provide sustained funding to humanitarian and community-based organizations operating along the U.S.-Mexico border and in the interior.
- Repeal state laws like Alabama's SB 302 and Florida's SB 2C that target human rights defenders and immigrants' rights groups.
- Cease federal attacks on sanctuary jurisdictions, affirming state and localities' rights to refuse to cooperate with federal immigration enforcement.

Florence Immigrant & Refugee Rights Project (Florence Project)

P.O. Box 86299 Tucson, AZ 85754 https://firrp.org/ Contact Person: Laura St. John, lstjohn@firrp.org

Founded in 1989, the Florence Immigrant & Refugee Rights Project (Florence Project) is a nonprofit legal services organization and our mission is to provide free legal and social services to detained adults and children facing immigration removal proceedings in Arizona. On any given day, there are thousands of people detained and facing deportation proceedings in Arizona, including adults in rural immigration jails and unaccompanied children who are or were previously in the custody of the Office of Refugee Resettlement ("ORR") in shelters. With no public defender structure in immigration removal proceedings, the vast majority of people facing removal are forced to go unrepresented in immigration court due to poverty or lack of access to counsel, this includes unaccompanied children who are in the country without a parent or legal guardian. The Florence Project's vision is to ensure that all immigrants facing removal have access to counsel, understand their rights under the law, and are treated fairly and humanely.
